A VERY pretty story, says the San Francisco News-Letter, was baked into the wedding cake given to the guests at the marriage of Miss Ida Remington and Mr. Walter Broder. The cake was made of "sugar and spice and everything nice," just twelve years ago, and presented by an English lady to Mr. and Mrs. Remington, to be used at their crystal wedding. But as it happened that event was not celebrated in festive manner, and so Mr. Remington had the cake tinned and sealed and it was carefully put away for an appropriate occasion.
When the earthquake and fire came, the cake was one of the first things Mrs. Remington carted out of the house. However, the house was saved and the cake was once more restored to its place. The years passed, and then came the appropriate time to un-seal the marvelous cake. What more propitious occasion than at the marriage of the only daughter of the household? The cake came out of its wrappings as rich and moist as the day it went in, twelve years ago, and the first two slices were daintily boxed and beribboned and sent to Honolulu to the son and daughter of the lady who had made the cake.

Colonel Frad Macfarlane and Miss Alice Macfarlane of Honolulu are in the city for a brief visit and are receiving a cordial welcome from their friends. Miss Macfarlane is one of the really popular girls with a style and vivacity that have won friends by the score. She is an enthusiastic motorist and an expert chauffeur with an inclination to various outdoor recreations that have occupied most of her time, but not to the exclusion of social affairs.— S. F. Call.

The fascinating description of the pit of Kilauaea, written by Mrs. Oscar Mauser, of Berkeley, in a letter written to a friend, is a brilliant pen picture of one of Hawaii's great beauty spots. The scene is so vividly described and so plainly pictured that one can almost see how "these glowing colors slid majestically into ever-changing patterns as in a kaleidoscope; here a bronze pool was rent across the center, there it was cracked into smaller pools in rosy arcs of beauty; now the pools looked like lustrous Persian enamel work, again some loom of the underworld was weaving a fabulous rug of fire, or tooling an illuminated book cover or painting a jeweled letter strip, or we beheld a brocade of bronze and flame unrolled before us; in truth all the treasures of the world's greatest craftsmen were at once exalted in this sullen flow of designs as the magic carpet was borne down to its undoing in the furious heart of "Old Faithful." The sketch teems with brilliant metaphors and realistic comparisons and might well form an interesting booklet to illustrate the beauty places of Hawaii.

A number of the friends of Miss Margaret Finney, having learned that she contemplates a trip to the mainland in the near future, swooped down upon her home on Vineyard street last evening and tendered her a farewell in the nature of a surprise party. Mids card games and music the hours were pleasantly whiled away. During the evening Mr. Axtell, who had equipped himself with his photographic apparatus, took a flashlight picture of the guests. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Finney, Miss Margaret Finney, Mr. and Mrs.
O. J. Whitehead, Miss Grace Woodbridge, Miss Marion Wright, Miss Dorothy Rowold, Miss Wicke and Messrs. Chas. E. Melvin, Eugene Todd, Frank C. Enos, Ray Axtell, and F. D. Wicke.

I witnessed a laughable scene in a moving picture show last week. A rural old gentleman and his wife, of a type now rare, were gazing at the exhibition with undisguised wonder.
It was evidently a complete novelty to them. The pair watched beautiful young women step out of nothingness, in obedience to the wand of the magician; their faces were a study as they observed the potent effect of a mysterious powder when sprinkled on a lazy messenger boy; the pictures of the Civil War pleased them immen-sely, and the portrayal of a banquet dined with the ultra-magnificence which the managers well know appeals to the masses, drew from them exclamations of wonder. Finally the operator threw on the screen the semi-lance of a New York Central Express train rushing at full speed. As the gigantic engine, puffing and steaming along a track which apparently led into the body of the theatre, suddenly switched aside at terrific speed, at the very edge of the first row of chairs, the old lady hurriedly arose from her seat and rushed out of the place, followed by her husband. "You don't drag me into no such place no more," she exclaimed to her astonished protector, "I never was so scared in my life!"—San Francisco News-Letter.

Pleasant gossip out at the Presidio has made known the engagement of another of the popular officers stationed at the post. This time the happy victim is Lieut. John S. Williams of the Coast Artillery Corps, and his fiancée is Miss Henrietta Walker, whose home is in Los Angeles. She is the daughter of Mrs.
Etta H. Walker and a sister of Lieut.
Eugene Bonfils Walker, whose wedding to Miss Carolyn Willis Williams was an event of a fortnight ago at the Presidio. The bride-elect attended the nuptial service as the maid of honor, while Lieut. Williams filled the office as best man and gave his sister into the keeping of the groom. At the ceremony Miss Walker was charmingly attractive in a white lace gown over pink satin, and she caught the bride's bouquet.
That she is to be a bride is only carrying out the traditions of the recent wedding festivities. Their marriage will take place during the first week in August, and then they will sail for Honolulu, where Lieut. Williams is ordered for station.—Examiner.

One of the most unique and elaborate entertainments of the summer season will be the dinner dance at the Parker bungalow in Manoa Valley on Wednesday evening of next week given by Ernest Parker in honor of Miss Thelma Parker, the Parker Ranch heiress. The bungalow, formerly the residence of Attorney McClanahan, has been remodelled by Col. Sam Parker under the direction of Ernest Parker, and is becoming one of the most attractive and artistic homes in Honolulu. For table decorations for the dinner Mr. Parker is fashioning some extremely artistic designs of roses and tulips. About three dozen guests are expected to be present.

Cards were received in this city by the Mongolia, announcing the marriage of Mr. August Frederick Hopke to Mrs. Marie Louise Brotter at Sulsun, Cal., on July 18th last. Mr.
Hopke is an old kamaaina, having held the position as manager of the H. C. & S. Co.'s store at Kahului, Maui from 1879 to 1894, when he left the islands to enter the employ of Jno. D.
Spreckels & Bros. Co. as buyer, and has a host of friends in this city and throughout the islands, who will rejoice to learn of his happiness.

A delightful band concert was given at the Moana hotel Tuesday evening by the Hawaiian band. The band stand was ablaze with electric lights and the broad lanais of the hotel were comfortably filled with guests while many people wandered through the grounds and found comfortable seats among the luxuriant foliage or sat on the beach in the moonlight, watching the silvery waves frolic on the crescent shore.

Among the notable arrivals from Honolulu this week were Mrs. E. D. Tenney and Miss Wilhelmina Tenney, who spent a few days at the Fairmont prior to their departure for Lake Tahoe

They brought their auto with them from the islands and plan to spend much time motoring about the beautiful country in the vicinity of Tahoe —Call.
